Counseling Relationship

The relationship between the counselor and counselee is the container through which transformation can take place. As such, the relationship is often one in which close emotional bonds may develop. It is also a professional relationship, in which appropriate boundaries must be maintained. Because the counselor-counselee relationship is so important limiting our relationship to counseling keeps the counseling environment safe, secure, and free of outside complications that could interfere with your counseling work.

Counseling Expertise

Our counselors at N(y)oo Mind Biblical Counseling are not licensed in the state of Missouri. However, the Lead Counselor Dr. Luther Smith graduated from Southern California Seminary with a MA in Counseling Psychology and doctorate in Psychology. Dr. Luther Smith has counseled various populations for approximately 12 years. All counselors are supervised and follow ethical guidelines that meet or exceed the counseling ethics in the state of Missouri. Any complex physiological and psychological assistance requiring medication may require a referral to the appropriate practitioner. All of the credentials and experience can be found on the "Meet The Counselors" section on the Nyoo Mind Biblical Counseling page located on drluthersmith.org.
